Chase: I am very pleased with their communication with us. They respond quickly. I am just not sure of one thing. If they would agree to the train the trainer concept, I would have my daughter attend the virtual training on March 24th and then train the rest of the employees. I am just not sure if they are OK with that because it would be one company but three different agent contracts. Jo

Answer from PFBC Single rep is fine. We will just need to know of all the affiliated stores/agents that are being subsequently trained, so that we can properly check them off that they participated in the training.
